What problems will Print-Limit solve for your school?

Students and staff are sending very large print jobs to the school printers accidentally or unnecessarily.

Print-Limit allows administrators to limit the size of individual print jobs or place other restrictions on printing to encourage responsible use.

Schools are spending excessive amounts on paper and toner.

Print-Limit allows the school to set print quotas and restrictions on users, reducing paper and toner use by up to 75%.

Schools are spending too much on expensive service calls and maintenance for their printers.

Cutting unnecessary printing not only saves money on paper and toner, it also reduces wear and tear on school printers so they last longer and need fewer service calls.

Students send jobs to more expensive color printers, even when it's not necessary.

Print-Limit can restrict the use of color printers, saving expensive cartridges for print jobs that really need color.

The school isn't really sure who is using the most paper or which users are printing too much.

Print-Limit has detailed reporting that shows which users are printing the most, as well as a detailed history of the biggest print jobs and the most expensive print jobs.

Computer users printing web pages don't always realize how big a web print job can be, resulting in many unwanted pages being printed.

Print-Limit allows administrators to restrict a print job if it contains too many pages so users become more aware of what they are printing and change settings.

The school would like to recoup some of its printing expenses or charge for extra printing on a per-user basis.

Print-Limit has special 'PrintCards' that can be created by an administrator and sold to students so they can add credits to their print account.

The school doesn't know which printers are being over utilized and which ones are not being used very much.

Print-Limit can show administrators exactly which printers in the school are being used and how much they are being used, allowing them to redirect printing to more efficient printers.

Users are encouraged to print on the front and back of the paper but they don't choose to do that, wasting paper.

Print-Limit lets administrators create 'discounts' for users based on two-sided printing, gray scale, or the choice of paper. Print-Limit can encourage users to print responsibly so they can stretch their quotas.
